

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

Introduction

WHETHER or not the women of Indiana will be granted the franchise in the near future, they are certain to exercise a potent influence upon the moral and social conditions, and even upon legislation and the administration of law in the State. The saying attributed to Henry Bergson that in the public view the American woman is either "a drudge or a toy" is evidently not applicable to the clubwomen of Indiana. There is among them an eager open-mindedness, a spirit of inquiry, a desire for information concerning the causes of unfavorable conditions in the social life and efficient methods of improving them. There is an awakened sense of responsibility, a consciousness of power, and a willing disposition to give their services freely. They understand that long-continued practices, deeply rooted prejudices, and strongly entrenched interests will not yield to merely emotional appeals. They know that reason based upon knowledge gives power, and they are eager to acquire such a knowledge of facts, practices, and principles as will give them the necessary strength and power.

The Extension Division of Indiana University, recognizing this attitude of mind and appreciating its opportunity to serve, offers this Outline for the Study of Political, Economic, and Social Problems in the hope that it may stimulate thought and direct study along lines of practical value to the several communities and to the State at large. It is designed to furnish a program of reading extending over a period of several years. Any attempt to cover the whole field in a single year would lead only to superficiality and affectation of knowledge. Systematic reading is necessary to acquire and retain any knowledge of the social sciences that is really worth while. The habit of "skipping about" in one's reading affords neither discipline nor information. It is far better to understand thoroughly the causal relations within a certain field than to have even considerable information which is disconnected and incoherent. Even clubs devoted chiefly to the study and enjoyment of the fine arts may find a place in their programs for the consideration of the relation of their particular art to the life of the people. For the highest art can be developed in Indiana only when a considerable part of the people comes to have a high appreciation of it.

In the preparation of the bibliographies it was necessary to omit many good references. The more important and the more recent have been included. In the case of controverted questions, references on both sides have been furnished. Breadth of view and a tolerant spirit can be secured only by considering disputed questions from all standpoints.

Many of the books cited may be obtained from the State Library, the Public Library Commission, and from local libraries. The outline may serve as a guide to officials of the latter in the purchase of books. It is quite impossible for the library of Indiana University to supply all the books which may be called for, but so far as its facilities will permit, books will be loaned for a period of two weeks and package libraries of articles and clippings will be furnished.

The Woman Citizen's Library in twelve volumes, edited by Dr. Shailer Mathews, contains material upon most of the topics included in this outline. Each volume has a selected bibliography, suggestive questions, and numerous illustrations. The set would furnish a club an excellent basis for study. (For further information address The Civic Society, 171-175 State Street, Chicago.)

The outline will suggest many topics suitable for club programs. The Extension Division will be glad, however, to furnish additional lists of topics whenever it is requested to do so. It is believed the handbook will be useful to other clubs and to individuals interested in social work. It will be of special assistance to teachers of history and civics.

Special acknowledgment is due the Education Committee of the Wisconsin Woman's Suffrage Association for permission to use material contained in the topical outline entitled "Social Forces." This booklet offers many valuable suggestions for study and practical work.

Today so many social forces affect the comfort, health, and happiness of the home, that it is a natural step from the study of society to the consideration of the efficiency of the home. No other explanation seems necessary for including in this booklet a list of references on Home Economics.

In view of the approaching centenary of the admission of Indiana as a State and the general interest in Indiana history and literature, topics and references on these subjects have also been included. A study of the historical development of the State will throw light on the political and economic questions of the present.

WILLIAM A. RAWLES,
Director of Extension Division.

THE EXTENSION DIVISION OF INDIANA UNIVERSITY

Correspondence Study Courses. The work of this section is intended to meet the needs of persons who are unable to obtain further education by attending secondary schools or colleges. At the present time more than one hundred courses in fourteen departments are offered.

Extension Lectures. Assistance is offered to schools, clubs, or other organizations in arranging for speakers for special occasions, single lectures upon a topic, or a series of lectures. These lectures will be given by members of the Faculty of the University and will be primarily educational, but not technical in character.

Where some club or informal group is studying a special field of knowledge a lecture or course of lectures by one who is devoting his time to investigation and teaching in this particular field will be both illuminating and inspirational. The fees for these lectures is usually a nominal amount.

Debating and Public Discussion. One of the best agencies for arousing interest in public questions and stimulating thought and action respecting the duties of citizenship is training in debating and public discussion. In addition, it has an educational value. It teaches a speaker to think clearly, to express himself tersely and forcibly, and to retain his self-possession. School authorities are encouraging the development of debating and public discussion. The Extension Division will co-operate in every way possible with schools, clubs, and other organizations in this important work. It prepares lists of references on current questions and has a library of material consisting of books, pamphlets, and clippings from which package libraries may be lent to persons interested in debating. High school teachers and others interested are invited to correspond with the Director of the Extension Division regarding the selection of questions. The State Library and the Library Commission have expressed a willingness to co-operate in this work. The only expense involved is the cost of the transportation of any materials which may be lent.

Assistance to Clubs. The Extension Division has been glad to assist clubs in the preparation of programs by suggesting topics for study and discussion and by furnishing lists of references. The members of clubs are invited to avail themselves of this opportunity at any time. This service is offered without any charge.

General Information and Welfare. Many persons in the State do not have access to libraries and other sources of accurate knowledge, and consequently are unable to obtain information upon many questions which arise. The University with its large library and its specialists trained in many lines constitutes a source of information which is available for the use of all the people of the State. So far as time and resources will permit, the University will respond to any inquiries concerning matters relating to food, hygiene, and sanitation, to discoveries affecting the prevention and cure of diseases, to economic, political, and social questions, to problems of general and special education, to conservation of resources, highways, municipal problems, civic improvement, and music and art.

Beginning in September 1914 the Extension Division will have a permanent member on its staff who will give his time to assisting the communities of the State in planning and organizing their social work.

In co-operation with the Legislative and Administrative Reference Bureau, a Municipal Reference Library has been established for the use of all the citizens of the State, but especially for municipal officials.

For further information write to the Extension Division of Indiana University.

EXTENSION PROJECTS UNDER SUPERVISION OF PURDUE UNIVERSITY

Farmers' Institutes. About 500 Farmers' Institute meetings are held each year in the several counties of the State. Women speakers are furnished for the majority of these meetings. Subjects relating to Home Economics and Country Life are discussed.

Short Courses. About twenty Short Courses are held each year in as many towns in the State. A separate division is made for women. An instructor from the Home Economics Department is in charge and gives work relating to foods, home decoration, and country life.

Domestic Science Demonstrations. Upon request an instructor is furnished to communities in the State for two days to conduct Domestic Science demonstrations Club Programs. A series of programs covering Home Economics and Country Life have been prepared for Women's Clubs and classes and are furnished upon request.

Girls' Clubs and Contests. Girls' Clubs and Contests in sewing, bread baking, fruit canning, etc., are organized in connection with the schools. A study outline adapted for the use of girls has also been prepared and is used in connection with these clubs.

Exhibits. A comprehensive exhibit covering the work of Home Economics has been prepared and is used in connection with County Fairs, the State Fair, Fall Festivals, and other meetings in the State.

Judging Work. In connection with County Fairs, Fall Festivals, School Exhibits, etc., judges are furnished to assist in awarding premiums.

Miscellaneous. Members of the Department are in a position to assist clubs, classes, and other groups of women through lectures, demonstrations, and organization.
